These courses will provide exciting opportunities to explore how your discipline interacts with others in addressing critical issues of global concern. Additionally, the innovative web-based resources that will result from the course are channels for publishing materials in a global arena to promote an open dialogue.

The University Seminar faculty teams will select course participants. In addition to evaluating individual qualifications, students will be selected in an attempt to create a balance of disciplines, schools and graduate / professional-degree or advanced-undergraduate experience in order to create an environment for rich collaboration. Invitation to participate in each University Seminar course is subject to the availability of slots.

Please complete the one-page application form and submit via email to useminar@tufts.edu by October 30, 2009.

- Since this is a limited-enrollment course, only students who have been selected will be registered. Each School registrar will process selected student registrations automatically.
- Your enrollment may need to be approved by your faculty advisor and/or department chair (to determine if credit will be awarded towards your degree requirements).
- You will be informed of your status before or during AS&E registration period for spring semester (November 9-20, 2009)

Please note:
You must submit an application to the Office of the Provost (at useminar@tufts.edu) in order to be considered a candidate, and confirmed and registered as a participant.
